

Dear Friend,

I am thrilled to introduce Karen Petersen Mehra and Will Price, our two newest directors of the American Prairie Reserve National Board of Directors. Karen and Will each bring extensive leadership experience and dedication to American land and wildlife conservation, which will be invaluable to advancing the organization's goals for the future.

Karen Petersen Mehra has devoted her energy to preserving America's last few wild areas, believing land conservation and the preservation of natural habitats are key to providing a meaningful future for our children. Growing up in the wilds of Utah and then living and working in Connecticut and New York have led Karen to APR, which she believes is the most exciting and meaningful land and wildlife conservation project in America today.

Along with serving on American Prairie Reserve's National Board of Directors, Karen serves on the boards of the Connecticut Land Conservation Council and The Nature Conservancy of Connecticut, and is actively involved with the Southern Utah Wilderness Alliance and The Garden Clubs of America. Previously, Karen worked at the American Museum of Natural History. She enjoys traveling, music, gardening, reading, puzzles, moments in nature, and above all, time with her four boys and husband.

Karen received a BA in government from Harvard University and an MA in anthropology from Columbia University.

Will Price is the Founder and Co-Managing Partner of Next Frontier Capital, a Montana-based venture capital fund with offices in Bozeman and Missoula. Prior to Next Frontier, Will served as CEO of Flite (acq. SNAP), Managing Director of Hummer Winblad Venture Partners, and as Senior Vice President with Pequot Capital Management.

In addition to American Prairie Reserve's National Board of Directors, Will serves on the board of the Gallatin Valley Land Trust, The Mountain Journal, National Venture Capital Association, the Montana State University Tech Transfer Office, and Jake Jobs Business School Advisory Board, and is a member of Bozeman Sunrise Rotary. Will received an MBA from Northwestern University and a BA from Harvard University. With family history in Montana dating to the 1850s, Will is passionate about Montana's people, communities, and wild places. Based in Bozeman, Will and his wife have two teen-aged sons.

On behalf of the staff and Board of Directors at American Prairie Reserve, I extend an enthusiastic welcome to Karen Petersen Mehra and Will Price. We are so fortunate to have their leadership.

Sincerely,

Alison Fox, CEO
American Prairie Reserve
